Biografie

Milan Meyberg is a Dutch Sustainability Strategist, Keynote Speaker and award winning Concept Developer who works for well-known global brands and festivals.

With nearly 20 years of experience in the electronic music industry, he was one of the first in the Netherlands to utilize festivals as living labs to solve climate-change issues, and spearheaded this industry's vast creativity to tackle environmental challenges. Most notably he developed and implemented concepts to create the world's most sustainable festival (DGTL) based on the tenets of a circular economy, and received numerous accolades and awards for his work.

Currently (feb 2021) he is developing beyond sustainable "regenerative" concepts for "Eco-

Restoration" events and communities, reaching out to a global audience of like minded "Solarpunks" through vlogs, blogs, lectures, keynotes and the occasional DJ performance. When he is not traveling, you can find him at his Tiny House at "Basecamp IJmuiden" (Amsterdam Beach), or tending to his rare heirloom crops at his semi-automated "Symbioculture" urban farm in Amsterdam.
